The Chautauqua Season Is Now Open

Tinley Park To Have Its First Chautauqua

For the first time in its history Tinley Park is going to have a Chautauqua beginning June 24 and continuing for four days up to and including June 27th. The Toledo Chautauqua System is putting on the four days of features. A representative from this concern called on the business people of the village sometime ago and got them interested in putting on the Chautauqua. All plans have been perfected and it is understood that the tent will be pitched in the open space south of the Rock Island depot.

The opening program will be held the afternoon of June 24th. All afternoon programs will be held at 2:45 o'clock daily and each evening program will begin at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets are being sold now and it is a good idea to buy season admission tickets as they are only half of the regular single admission tickets. Buy your tickets thru the local boosters.

Following is the daily program: First day. Afternoon-Full concert by Missouri Wesleyan Male Quartet. Six o'clock supper for business men and farmers served by local organization. Music by Missouri Wesleyan Male Quartet. Address, "Taxation, Constructive and Destructive," by James Hannibal Clancy. Program free. Make advance reservations for supper.

Evening program-Musical program by Missouri Wesleyan Male Quartet. Lecture, "The Law and its Sorrows," by James Hannibal Clancy.

Second day. Afternoon-One-act play. Children's program, a dramatized version of "Little Red Riding Hood." "The Man From the Clouds," presenting toy balloons.

Fourth day. Afternoon-Brilliant concert, featuring ensemble numbers of violin, flute, cello and harp with solos, Duets and trios, by the Cleveland Symphonic Quartet.

Evening-Concert prelude by the Cleveland Symphonic Quartet. Spectacular magic, by Ulrich and company.

The big feature of the opening day June 24th will be a six o'clock supper to be served to the business men and farmers by the local chautauqua committee and during this supper hour Mr. Clancy will give a

Will Finish New Lenox Highway

Paving of the Lincoln highway between Joliet and New Lenox will be completed this summer, according to a letter received by Sheriff John D. Walker from C. R. Miller, director of the department of public works and buildings, of Illinois. Sheriff Walker recently communicated with Director Miller with reference to the highway, pointing out that the work has been delayed for some time and that its completion was urgent.

In reply the department director stated that two companies, the J. L. Bannon company and the Federal Paving company, had both undertaken the work, but that both had suffered financial difficulties, and that difficulty had been encountered in getting another concern to complete the project.

Mr. Miller stated, however, that the contract for the paving had been awarded and that it would be rushed to completion this summer.

FRANKFORT SCHOOL BOND ISSUE OF $23,500 SOLD WITH AN ADDED $100 PREMIUM

The Frankfort public school bond issue for $23,500 was sold last Saturday with a hundred dollar premium to Thompson, Kent & Grace of Chicago, municipal bond brokers, thru their representative, Henry B. Battles. The Hanchett Bond Co., of Chicago was also represented.

This coming Saturday the building contract will be let. It is said that the new school will in all probability not be completed before the end of this year.

FRANKFORT HAS NEW TRAFFIC RULING

In order to prevent speeding and to lessen danger of accidents by improper parking of cars, the village board has passed a new ruling to the effect that when the fire siren blows on Saturday noons all the cars on the streets at that time must park to the right. A special effort is being put forth to curb speeding. Special officer E. Miller is doing all in his power to enforce the new order.

vital address on the subject of "Taxation, Constructive and Destructive." He will also appear on the evening program in an address on "The Law and its Sorrows" in which he will show you how our legal system exists for the benefit of the lawyers rather than to dispense justice to the people.

Everyone is urged to attend the Chautauqua programs above outlined and help to make the undertaking a big success so that its return can be assured for next year. Having a Chautauqua brings more people to town and acts as a sort of stimulator all around. Lorenz and Hollstein are going to hold a dance every night at Saenger Hall following the Chautauqua programs. Do not forget the dates June 24, 25, 26 and 27. Come.

Chautauqua Will Open at New Lenox, June 13

The annual New Lenox Chautauqua opens on Friday afternoon of this week and will be on for four days, closing on Monday evening.

A very fine daily program has been prepared for each day by the Mutual Morgan Company who have been conducting the Chautauquas presented here during the past several years.

The big brown tent will be pitched in the school yard. Undoubtedly this summer treat will draw a large crowd as the wholesomeness and worth of these Chautauqua programs are well established in this community.

Many excellent numbers will be presented and one of the big features is the well known play "Daddy Long Legs" to be presented the 3rd evening, Sunday, June 15th. Be sure and tell your friends and bring them with you to these good programs.

The New Lenox people are to be given much credit for the interest they have manifested in Chautauqua during the past several years. They are determined to make this year's Chautauqua an exceptional success and as a result about 100 guarantors are back of it this season. New Lenox has found these yearly Chautauqua gatherings an asset to the community and therefore they have been returned year after year. Remember this season's dates, June 13, 14, 15, and 16th. Better still be sure and COME!

Thousands at Palos Festival

Miss McClaughry, Miss McMahon and their many co-workers were successful in putting over one of the biggest and best school festivals ever held in Cook County. It is estimated that over 3,000 men and women and children were at the festival grounds at Sharpshooters Park, Palos Park.

The program consisted of a band concert given by Thornton Township high school band which consisted of 51 pieces. Receiving of diplomas by over 150 eighth grade graduates. A picnic luncheon was held by the different districts present. The afternoon was given to a grand parade which formed at the lake on 86th avenue and marched down 123rd street to the reviewing stand and later fell out. The parade consisted of the different school districts present, each school giving their favorite yell. Many floats of all kinds were in evidence. At the close of the parade the afternoon was spent in races and other games. Argo and Orland High schools furnished the final attraction in a ball game which was won by Argo with a score of 10 to 5. Misses McClaughry and McMahon are to be congratulated on their successful day.

NEW LENOX SCHOOL HAS COMMENCEMENT MONDAY

The annual commencement exercises of the New Lenox public school were held on Monday evening at Grange hall. A very interesting program was given. The students presented a playlet and the little folks presented "Tom Thumbs Wedding".

Rev. Hamilton, pastor of the local Methodist church presented diplomas to the following graduates: David Johnston, Gaylord Robinson, Edna Pugh and Helen Johnson.

The annual school picnic was held Tuesday.

MOKENA SCHOOL HOLDS POSTPONED PICNIC

The Mokena school picnic which had to be postponed last week on account of the rainy weather, came near being postponed again this week on account of rain. The sun came out in time Tuesday morning to dry the grass so the picnic was held in the Cappel grove and all enjoyed a fine time. Some of the parents accompanied the youngsters and also had a delightful time.

Anti-Saloon League to Show Stirring Film

Herbert H. Rood, District Superintendent of the Northeastern District of the Anti-Saloon League has been in Frankfort, Mokena and a number of other Will County villages and towns this week booking them for a movie entitled "Lest We Forget" which the Anti-Saloon League is using in its campaign of law enforcement education. Mr. Rood has ten counties under his jurisdiction and states that the law as far as the 18th amendment is concerned is all right, but that the public officials such as the village and county authorities who have taken an oath of office to enforce the law, are often times found to be violating their oaths of office. He declared that such men are as much traitors to their country as were those who fired on Fort Sumter in 1861. Mr. Rood then gave a summary as follows in regards to the enforcement of the prohibition law:

1. It is the duty of the Mayor and the Council of every incorporated town or city to enforce the prohibition law. It is the business of all police officers, marshalls, and constables and deputy sheriffs to investigate and on reasonable evidences secured, swear out warrants, arrest and bring before the courts those who are found violating the law or any person found drunk upon the streets.

The Mayor or any member of the village or city council has the right under the law, to make arrests for liquor law violations if committed in their presence.

2. It is the duty of the State's Attorney to see that the sheriff and his deputies, where the law is manifestly being violated, make investigation and on evidence obtained swear out warrants or cause them to be sworn out and vigorously prosecute such cases before the courts. It is also the duty of the sheriff of the county and his deputies, independent of the State's Attorney, on reasonable suspicion, to make investigation of alleged law violations and on evidences gathered to proceed against violators.

3. As it is manifestly impossible for the State's Attorney and sheriff's force of any county, because of their being known, or because of their inexperience in these difficult matters, to completely clean the county of bootleggers and blind pig operators,—it therefore becomes his duty, under the law, for the State's Attorney to go before the Board of Supervisors and request them to make a sufficient appropriation to be used under his direction to bring into the county competent secret service men who can, as wide experience has shown, secure the evidence against law violators.

Mr. Rood declared that the judge has the authority to levy a fine of $1,000 and a sentence of 6 months in jail for the first offense and if such a fine and sentence were imposed often instead of a nominal fine, there would be a big decrease in the violation of the law. Any drunken person can be fined $200 under the law and if such a fine were imposed in every case, there would be but few drunks found.

He also declared that if H. Rehn is elected State's Attorney this fall that Will County will find that the prohibition law will be more rigidly enforced than it has been.

The Anti-Saloon movie "Lest We Forget" is booked to be shown at the Mokena M. E. church on Wednesday evening, July 2nd.

Mr. Rood further showed that the Anti-Saloon League will need $200,000 this year to carry on its work. He also pointed out that even though many highway accidents do happen every day, yet with the old time saloon running wide open in every town and hamlet, these roads would be veritable slaughter houses due to drunken drivers. He said that there is 70 per cent less liquor consumption now than there was before the Volstead act went into effect.

A six months jail sentence and a heavy fine would in most cases bring a wholesome respect for the laws of the state and nation.

A big crowd is expected to come out to the childrens day exercises to be given at the Palos Park Presbyterian church Sunday, June 15. A program by the children will be given and instead of church and Sunday school it will be a service beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

It was stated in the last issue that the last series of moving pictures to be given at the Palos Park Presbyterian church was to be on June 6th. This was a mistake by the correspondents as the last series is to be given on June 28th instead of June 6th.

Friends from Chicago visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hannibal last Sunday.

Change in Orland Board as Result Of Recount

The meeting of the Orland village board held Monday night was quite a spectacular affair. Fully sixty citizens of Orland were present. The big sensation was the recount of the ballots cast in the recent village election.

At the time of the election the election board refused to accept the votes of the independent ticket on the grounds that this ballot had no heading designating what party was represented and therefore their legality was questioned.

The candidates whose names had been written in on the independent ticket demanded a recount of the votes and if elected they asked to be given their seats on the village board. Accordingly they were represented by Attorney Skinner of Chicago who showed that the votes were legal and that the ticket in question did not need a heading as long as the voters wishes were shown. The ballots were opened and recounted and the results showed as follows: for village trustees on independent ticket I. A. Cleveland, 31 votes; W. R. Schussler, Jr., 27; on regular ticket for village trustees, Herman Dewese 20 votes; Ernest Vogt, 18 votes. The board declared Cleveland and Schussler elected and they will be seated at the next meeting succeeding Vogt and Dewese.

Some pretty warm arguments came up during the meeting and interest ran high all the time.

Music will be furnished by Sweets orchestra of Joliet. There will be a bus service from Mt. Greenwood to the grove. If you enjoy good times here is your chance to have one. Tell your friends. Better still bring them with you.

The proceeds are to be used to purchase a fire fighting chemical apparatus. Everybody help this good cause along and make it go over Big!

TINLEY PARK

Mrs. Molin, our doughnut baker has been quite ill for a week. We hope to see her out soon as she is feeling better.

The many friends of Mrs. Herman Wannemacher will be glad to know that she is able to be out and is feeling much better after her long siege of illness.

Mesdames Hick and Stricker went to Blue Island Thursday.

Anyone having items for the News-Bulletin will please leave them at the home of Mrs. A. Mesenbrink and will be much appreciated.

The Mothers Sewing Club met at the home of Mrs. Andres, Thursday, but there is more eating and talking done than sewing, so husbands say it is a "bluff".

The Luther League met at the Hartman home, Thursday evening and there was a large attendance. Next meeting will probably be in the new decorated school house. Owing to it being re-decorated the summer school will be opened at a later date which will be published later.

The storm Saturday night did some damage to the granary and barn of Henry Siebrandt, but not so much as it was first thought for which they are very thankful. All the volunteers and friends have their gratitude for the timely aid and assistance rendered them and also the telephone operators for their quick work.

The Royal Neighbors had their meeting Tuesday. Bunko was played after the meeting.

Old King Tut's Foresight

Old King Tutankhamen believed in keeping his valuables in a safe place at all times. His jewels and other valuables were placed in his hidden tomb and the latter sealed so that marauding bands should never find them and fully 3,000 years elapsed without the hiding place being discovered. You people of Orland and surrounding community, do not have to go to the trouble the Egyptians did. For the small sum of $3 annually your valuables will rest securely in a Safety Deposit box behind the strong walls of this institution—safe from fire, theft and destruction. Why not rent one today?

"The man has a great heart in him, as every great man must," he wrote to his father. "I am beginning to love him. I can see that these thousands in the army are going to be bound to him by an affection like that of a son for a father. With men like Washington and Franklin to lead us, how can we fail?"

The next night Sir Henry Clinton got around the Americans and turned their left flank. Smallwood's command and that of Colonel Jack Irons were almost destroyed, twenty-two hundred having been killed or taken. Jack had his left arm shot through and escaped only by the swift and effective use of his pistols and hanger, and by good luck, his horse having been "only slightly cut in the withers." The American line gave way. Its unseasoned troops fled into Brooklyn. There was the end of the island. They could go no farther without swimming. With a British fleet in the harbor under Admiral Lord Howe, the situation was desperate. Sir Henry had only to follow and pen them in and unlimber his guns. The surrender of more than half of Washington's army would have to follow. At headquarters, the most discerning minds saw that only a miracle could prevent it.

The miracle arrived. Next day a fog thicker than the darkness of a clouded night enveloped the island and lay upon the face of the waters. Calmly, quickly Washington got ready to move his troops. That night, under the friendly cover of the fog, they were quietly taken across the East river, with a regiment of Marblehead sea dogs, under Colonel Glover, manning the boats. Fortunately, the British army had halted, waiting for clear weather.

For nearly two weeks Jack was nursing his wound in Washington's army hospital, which consisted of a cabin, a tent, a number of cow stables and an old shed on the heights of Harlem. Jack had lain in a stable. Toward the end of his confinement, John Adams came to see him.

"Were you badly hurt?" the great man asked.

"Scratched a little, but I'll be back in the service tomorrow," Jack replied.

"You do not look like yourself quite. I think that I will ask the commander in chief to let you go with me to Philadelphia. I have some business there and later Franklin and I are going to Staten Island to confer with Admiral Lord Howe. We are a pair of snappish old dogs and need a young man like you to look after us. You would only have to keep out of our quarrels, attend to our luggage and make some notes in the conference."

So it happened that Jack went to Philadelphia with Mr. Adams and, after two days at the house of Doctor Franklin, set out with the two great men for the conference on Staten Island. He went in high hope that he was to witness the last scene of the war.

In Amboy he sent a letter to his father, which said:

"Mr. Adams is a blunt, outspoken man. If things do not go to his liking, he is quick to tell you. Doctor Franklin is humorous and polite, but firm as a God-placed mountain. You may put your shoulder against the mountain and push and think it is moving, but it isn't. He is established. He has found his proper bearings and is done with moving. These two great men differ in little matters. They had a curious quarrel the other evening. We had reached New Brunswick on our way north. The taverns were crowded. I ran from one to another trying to find entertainment for my distinguished friends. At last I found a small chamber with one bed in it and a single window. The bed nearly filled the room. No better accommodation was to be had. I had left them sitting on a bench in a little grove near the large hotel, with the luggage near them. When I returned they were having a hot argument over the origin of northeast storms, the doctor asserting that he had learned by experiment that they began in the southwest and proceeded in a northeasterly direction. I had to wait ten minutes for a chance to speak to them. Mr. Adams was hot faced, the doctor calm and smiling. I imparted the news.

"God of Israel! Mr. Adams exclaimed. "Is it not enough that I have to agree with you? Must I also sleep with you?"

"Sir, I hope that you must not, but if you must, I beg that you will sleep more gently than you talk," said Franklin.

"I went with them to their quarters carrying the luggage. On the way Mr. Adams complained that he had picked up a flea somewhere.

"The flea, sir, is a small animal, but a big fact," said Franklin. "You alarm me. Two large men and a flea will be apt to crowd our quarters."

"In the room they argued with a depth of feeling which astonished me, as to whether the one window should be open or closed. Mr. Adams had closed it.

"Please do not close the window," said Franklin. "We shall suffocate."

"Sir, I am an invalid and afraid of the night air," said Adams rather testily.

"The air of this room will be much worse for you than that out-of-doors," Franklin retorted. He was then between the covers. I beg of you to open the window and get into bed and if I do not prove my case to your satisfaction, I will consent to its being closed."

"I lay down on a straw-filled mattress outside their door. I heard Mr. Adams open the window and get into bed. Then Doctor Franklin began to expound his theory of colds. He declared that cold air never gave any one a cold; that respiration destroyed a gallon of air a minute and that all the air in the room would be consumed in an hour. He went on and on and long before he had finished his argument, Mr. Adams was snoring, convinced rather by the length than the cogency of the reasoning. Soon the two great men, whose fame may be said to fill the earth, were asleep in the same bed in that little box of a room and snoring in a way that suggested loud contention. I had to laugh as I listened. Mr. Adams would seem to have been defeated, for, by and by, I heard him muttering as he walked the floor."

Howe's barge met the party at Amboy and conveyed them to the landing near his headquarters. It was, however, a fruitless journey. Howe wished to negotiate on the old ground now abandoned forever. The people of America had spoken for independence—a new, irrevocable fact not to be put aside by ambassadors. The colonies were lost. The concessions which the wise Franklin had so urgently recommended to the government of England, Howe seemed now inclined to offer, but they could not be entertained.

"Then my government can only maintain its dignity by fighting," said Howe.

"That is a mistaken notion," Franklin answered. "It will be much more dignified for your government to acknowledge its error than to persist in it."

"We shall fight," Howe declared. "And you will have more fighting to do than you anticipate," said Franklin. "Nature is our friend and ally. The Lord has prepared our defenses. They are the sea, the mountains, the forest and the character of our people. Consider what you have accomplished. At an expense of eight million pounds you have killed about eight hundred Yankees. They have cost you ten thousand pounds a head. Meanwhile, at least a hundred thousand children have been born in America. There are the factors in your problem. How much time and money will be required for the job of killing all of us?"

The British admiral ignored the query.

"My powers are limited," said he, "but I am authorized to grant pardons and in every way to exercise the king's paternal solicitude."

"Such an offer shows that your proud nation has no flattering opinion of us," Franklin answered. "We, who are the injured parties, have not the baseness to entertain it. You will forgive me for reminding you that the king's paternal solicitude has been rather trying. It has burned our defenseless towns in midwinter; it has incited the savages to massacre our farmers in the back country; it has driven us to a declaration of independence. Britain and America are now distinct states. Peace can be considered only on that basis. You wish to prevent our trade from passing into foreign channels. Let me remind you, also, that the profit of no trade can ever be equal to the expense of holding it with fleets and armies."

"On such a basis I am not empowered to treat with you," Howe answered. "We shall immediately move against your army."

The conference ended. The ambassadors and their secretary shook hands with the British admiral.

"Mr. Irons, I have heard much of you," said the latter as he held Jack's hand. "You are deeply attached to a young lady whom I admire and whose father is my friend. I offer you a chance to leave this troubled land and go to London and marry and lead a peaceable, Christian life. You may keep your principles, if you wish, as I have no use for them. You will find sympathizers in England."

"Lord Howe, your kindness touches me," the young man answered. "What you propose is a great temptation. It is like Calypso's offer of immortal happiness to Ulysses. I love England. I love peace, and more than either, I love the young lady, but I couldn't go and keep my principles."

"Why not, sir?"

"Because we are all of a mind with our Mr. Patrick Henry. We put liberty above happiness and even above life. So I must stay and help fight her battles, and when I say it I am grinding my own heart under my heel. Don't think harshly of me. I cannot help it. The feeling is bred in my bones."

His lordship smiled politely and bowed as the three men withdrew.

Franklin took the hand of the young man and pressed it silently as they were leaving the small house in which Howe had established himself.

Jack, who had been taking notes of the fruitless talk of these great men, was sorely disappointed. He could see no prospect now of peace.

"My hopes are burned to the ground," he said to Doctor Franklin.

"It is a time of sacrifice," the good man answered. "You have the invincible spirit that looks into the future and gives all it has. You are America."

"I have been thinking too much of myself," Jack answered. "Now I am ready to lay down my life in this great cause of ours."

"Boy, I like you," said Mr. Adams. "I have arranged to have you safely conveyed to New York. There an orderly will meet and conduct you to our headquarters."

"Thank you, sir," Jack replied. Turning to Doctor Franklin, he added: "One remark of yours to Lord Howe impressed me. You said that nature was our friend and ally. It put me in mind of the fog that helped us out of Brooklyn and of a little adventure of mine."

Then he told the story of the spider's web.

"I repeat that all nature is with us," said Franklin. "It was a sense of injustice in human nature that sent us across the great barrier of the sea into conditions where only the strong could survive. Here we have raised up a sturdy people with 3,000 miles of water between them and tyranny. Armies cannot cross it and succeed long in a hostile land. They are too far from home. The expense of transporting and maintaining them will bleed our enemies until they are spent. The British king is powerful, but now he has picked a quarrel with Almighty God, and He will go hard with him."

CHAPTER XVII

How Solomon Shifted the Skeeer.

In the spring news came of a great force of British which was being organized in Canada for a descent upon New York through Lake Champlain. Frontier settlers in Tryon county were being massacred by Indians.

Generals Herkimer and Schuyler had written to Washington, asking for the services of the famous scout, Solomon Binkus, in that region.

"He knows the Indian as no other man knows him and can speak his language and he also knows the bush," Schuyler had written. "If there is any place on earth where his help is needed just now, it is here."

"Got to leave ye, my son," Solomon said to Jack one evening soon after that.

"How so?" the young man asked.

"Goin' hum to fight Injuns. The Great Father has ordered it. I'll like it better. Gittin' lazy here. Summer's comin' an' I'm a born bush man. I'm kind o' oneasy—like a deer in a doorway. I ain't had to run fer my life since we got here. My hoofs are complainin'. I ain't shot a gun in a month."

A look of sorrow spread over the face of Solomon.

"I'm tired of this place," said Jack. "The British are scared of us and we're scared of the British. There's nothing going on. I'd love to go back to the big bush with you."

"I'll tell the Great Father that you're a born bush man. Maybe he'll let ye go. They'll need us both. Rum, Injuns an' the devil have jined hands. The Long house will be the center o' hell an' its line fences'll take in the hull big bush."

That day Jack's name was included in the order.

"I'm sorry that it is not yet possible to pay you or any of the men who have served me so faithfully," said Washington. "If you need money I shall be glad to lend you a sum to help you through this journey."

"I ain't fightin' fer pay," Solomon answered. "I'll hoe an' dig, an' cook, an' guide fer money. But I won't fight no more fer money—partly 'cause I don't need it—partly 'cause I'm fightin' fer myself. I got a little left in my britches pocket, but if I hadn't, my ol' Marier wouldn't let me go hungry."

A Serious Case

A notoriously absent-minded man was observed walking down the street with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A friend meeting him said: "Good evening. How are you?"

"Well," replied the absent-minded one, "I thought I was very well when I left home, but now I don't know what's the matter with me. I've been limping for the last half hour."

Passing the Buck

The new cook gave some pork chops to a relative who called while the lady of the house was out paying a few calls.

"The missus will miss them," warned the parlor maid.

"Oh, I'll blame that on the cat."

"We have no cat."

"Then be a good girl," urged the new cook earnestly, "and let the canary out of its cage."

THE RETURN AND THE REBUILDING OF THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 1:1-11; 3:8-6:22.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God."—Isa. 40:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Building a House for God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Rebuilding of the Temple.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Significance of the Return.

I. The Return From Captivity Predicted (Jer. 29:10-14).

It seems that false prophets were flourishing in Babylon, telling the people that they would speedily be restored to their own land. To counteract this the Lord moved Jeremiah to send a letter to the captives in Babylon (Jer. 29:1-9). In this letter he advised them to settle down and quietly pursue their regular callings of life and not to be led astray by false prophets.

1. The Length of the Captivity (v. 10). Their coming back was to be "after seventy years." From Daniel 9:2 it is clear that seventy years means a definite time. It dates from the time when the first company was taken captive among which Daniel was found.

II. The Prediction of Captivity Fulfilled (Ezra 1:1-11).

1. The Proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4). This was not by accident, but that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled (v. 1). God never forgets. What He has promised He will do. It was by divine initiation—the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus. In his proclamation he ordered that all who desired should go back and build the house of the Lord God, and those who lacked this inclination should lend assistance by making gifts of silver, gold and beasts.

2. The Response to Cyrus' Proclamation (vv. 5, 6). The company which returned was largely made up of representatives of Judah and Benjamin.

3. Royal Favours (vv. 7-11). Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and placed in the house of his gods. This, no doubt, greatly encouraged the Jews, for there were 5,400 vessels returned.

III. The Temple Rebuilt (Ezra 3:8-6:15).

1. The Foundation Laid. This was an auspicious occasion and was celebrated with impressive ceremonies.

(1) The priests in their apparel (v. 10). The priests' garments symbolized their consecration to the Lord's service.

(2) The priests with trumpets (v. 10). These trumpets were made of silver and were used in calling the people together.

(3) The Levites with symbols (v. 10). These were to furnish the instrumental music of the sanctuary, in accordance with the arrangements made by David (1 Chron. 15:10-21).

(4) They sang together by course (v. 11). This means that they sang to one another responsively. The one company sang, "The Lord is good." The other responded, "For his mercy endureth forever."

(5) Mingled weeping and shouting (vv. 12, 13). Some of the older men, who had seen the magnificent and glorious temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed, wept much when they saw how far short the present foundations came from the former temple.

2. The Building Hindered (Ezra 4). The leading adversaries were the Samaritans, a mongrel people, the offspring of the poor Jews who were left in Palestine and the foreign people who were sent into Palestine after the Jews were taken captive.

(1) An unintelligent pessimism (Ezra 3:13). Under the circumstances this was a glorious beginning and gave promise of great things for the future. Therefore it was no credit to the priests, Levites and chief of the fathers to mar this occasion with their weeping.

(2) Worldly compromise (Ezra 4:2, 3). They said, "Let us build with you, for we seek your God." This is Satan's most common and effective method today.

(3) Open opposition by the world (Ezra 4:4-24). When refused a part in the work open opposition was resorted to.

3. The Temple Finished (Ezra 5:1-6; 6:15). Through the ministry of the Prophets Haggai and Zechariah the people were encouraged to resume the work of building the temple.

IV. The Temple Dedicated (Ezra 6:16-22).

The people were united in this building program and came together upon its completion and solemnly dedicated it to God.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas. — "Words cannot express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine."—Mrs. J. E. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

A descendant of the illustrious family of Bonaparte, Miss Blanche Sterleight, is selling motorcars to "prospects" in New York. Miss Sterleight is a daughter of Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte. The latter's husband was a grandson of Joseph, brother of the great Corsican himself. Joseph was Napoleon's right hand in the critical days of the consulate. He it was who rushed the grenadiers to the chamber of deputies during the revolution when his brother was answering charges of extravagance in his campaign in Egypt and Italy. Later Joseph was awarded the throne of Spain. An old Flemish rhyme has it that Napoleon was "a butcher of men." Louis (king of Holland) "always broke his promises." Jerome (king of Westphalia) "dealt in ham" and Joseph was the "tyrant of Spain."

Appalling Problem Confronts Americans, Life Tables Show

Average health span extends only from age 18 to age 31—Earning power dwindles rapidly after 40

Health—physical freedom and full vigor—ends at age 31 for the average person. Maximum usefulness ends at 40. These facts, shown by the United States Life Tables, 1920, form the most appalling problem every human being has to face!

What are the years after 40 going to mean to you? Will they be worth living? Can you earn your way during those years?

Not if you are "the average individual." What sort of person is "the average individual" in America? He works hard. He eats wisely. He loads his body with drug stimulants, which appear to give energy, but actually borrow this energy from his own reserve.

Age 31—and he begins to slip. The reserve strength which his body sought to store up against these later years, has bit by bit been robbed. Age 40—he suffers loss of income. Age 50—what?

Remember the simple laws of health which everyone learned in school. Avoid stimulants. Avoid the sleepless hours, upset digestion, warning headaches, taut nerves and muddy complexions which so often accompany the use of the drug caffeine.

Caffeine is classified as a poison. Like strychnin, it is sometimes given by doctors in cases of heart failure. The average cup of coffee contains the usual dose of caffeine administered in such cases. The alarming foolishness of taking this poison regularly into the system is borne out by the frightful limitation of health and usefulness as compared with the length of life.

Old Vehicles in Favor

Yucatan clings to antiquated means of transportation, which include the carreta, the coche, the volan and the volante, although the introduction of automobiles bids fair to eliminate these vehicles, says the Detroit News. The carreta is a heavy two-wheeled truck; the coche, a light four-wheeled, rubber-tired, rigid-topped carriage, with body supported on heavy leather straps, for travel on the rocky country roads, similar to the stage coach of America's old West, and the volante, a very heavy four-wheeled vehicle, somewhat like a victoria, but with the body supported on heavy leather straps used for rough travel in the rural districts.

Big Traffic in Cocaine

Cocaine is derived from coca, and is produced chiefly in the Andean sections of Peru, Chile, Bolivia and the Argentine Republic. The province of Yunga, Bolivia, is the chief producing territory, the output aggregating more than $200,000,000 annually. The production is steadily increasing, and it is believed that the total crop of the South American countries for the past year exceeds $375,000,000. Among its addicts it is better known as "snow," and some authorities hold it to be the curse of the Occident.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

"Directed Especially at Jane Addams"

WASHINGTON.—A bill announced as "directed especially against Jane Addams," the Women's International League for Peace, and slacker oath pacifist organizations was introduced the other day in the house by Representative Clarence McLeod of Michigan. McLeod announced that he had drafted it after conference with the attorney general, who, he said, admitted there were no laws today under which pacifist organizations actually boosting bolshevik plans could be curbed.

The bill is intended to prevent the mailing, displaying or distributing in any way of propaganda advocating the overthrow of the government by violence or opposition by violence to any law of the United States. It is contended that under these provisions advocating the forcible resistance to a war of defense would become a crime. A statement from McLeod said:

"The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and similar organizations have made such marked headway in advocating the principles of Trotsky and other officials of the soviet government that immediate steps to put an end to their activities in the United States becomes necessary."

"It appears that legislation of a drastic nature is absolutely necessary at the present time, and the sooner this country can avail itself of a proper law to prohibit and punish persons guilty of unwarranted and seditious acts against the government of the United States, the quicker we will be in a better position to deal with this poisonous and damnable propaganda, which does nothing more than breed discontent and undermine our institutions."

At about the same time the press reported the opening in Chicago of a peace school in connection with the league. Noted women present included Jane Addams; Dr. Aletta Jacobs, originator of the birth control movement; Dr. Anita Augspurg, first woman lawyer in Germany; Mlle. Lucie Dejardin, labor inspector and chevalier of the Order of Leopold II of Belgium; Mme. Eplash Youssoff, first woman journalist in Turkey; Rosika Schwimmer, Hungarian ambassador to Switzerland; Dr. Gertrude Woker, noted professor of chemistry at Berne, Switzerland; politicians, social workers, doctors, philanthropists, teachers, and writers. Young—slim Dorothy Wong of China, still in college; old—Dr. Jacobs, past seventy, many with white hair—five with it bobbed.

Hanihara Is Well Liked at the Capital

MASANOBU HANIHARA, the Japanese ambassador, whose note on Japanese immigration stirred up trouble, has always been personally popular in Washington. Hanihara, short of stature, round-faced and rosy-cheeked, went to Washington first in 1901, when he was twenty-five years old, as one of the secretaries of the Japanese embassy and almost immediately became probably the best liked oriental who ever lived in the city. He speaks flawless English and also has a thorough understanding of American idioms and slang, using both with telling effect when the occasion seems to warrant it.

He is highly educated, a voracious reader and has a marvelous memory for facts and faces. In addition he is one of the most suavely polite men in the capital, has a captivating smile, is quick at repartee, plays a good game of poker and is at home and welcome in any social gathering.

The newspaper men like Hanihara. He was a reporter for a time on a Tokyo newspaper before he entered the diplomatic service and he understands why reporters ask the questions they do and write as they do. Consequently he talks frankly to them and does not try to tell them what to print or what not. If he knows anything he doesn't desire to see printed he just doesn't tell it.

In 1901 he was assigned as one of the secretaries at Washington and was one of the staff of the embassy at the Portsmouth peace conference following the Russo-Japanese war. He was recalled to Japan in 1910.

When the agitation against Japanese immigration began to stir things on the Pacific coast back in 1916, he was named consul-general at San Francisco. His tact and discretion contributed much to the settlement of the question at the time.

When Viscount Ishii came to this country in 1917, touring the United States with a large suite, Hanihara was his chief of staff. His next appearance in America was at the arms conference called by the late President Harding, coming as the secretary-general of the Japanese delegation. Later he succeeded Ambassador Sidehara, who was in poor health.

With all his smiling suavity, Hanihara never agrees with anything he doesn't want to agree with and despite his long association with occidentals and his ability to get the western viewpoint in most things he never forgets his nationalism.

Norfleet, "Boomerang Sucker" From Texas

FRANK NORFLEET of Hale county, Texas, famous as the nemesis of confidence men, will receive $17,000 by congressional appropriation if a bill introduced by Representative Marvin Jones of Texas and backed by Representative William M. Valle of Colorado passes. Norfleet is known in Denver as the boomerang sucker, who aided Philip S. Van Cise, district attorney, in rounding up and sending to prison members of the $1,000,000 Denver bunko ring.

The Jones bill requests congress to reimburse Norfleet to the extent of $17,000 for expenses incurred in a roundup of 34 confidence men who fleeced him out of $45,000 four years ago. At the risk of his life and at very heavy expense he trailed Joe Furey and Furey's gang throughout the entire country, and a few weeks ago put the last of the Furey ring behind the bars, congress was told. His aid to the Denver district attorney and authorities elsewhere has been instrumental in the conviction of more than thirty other bunko artists around the country.

In Denver, during the time that the district attorney was on the trail of the local bunko ring, time after time attempts to have suckers picked up by the gang met with failure. To obtain definite evidence against the ring District Attorney Van Cise needed a witness who would work with him, get the goods on the gang, tip the district attorney and permit the confidence operators to be caught red-handed.

Out of a clear sky came Norfleet. In Denver on the trail of members of the Furey gang still at large, Norfleet was picked up by a stealer for the Blonger-Duff gang of Denver. Norfleet notified the district attorney and agreed to go through as a state witness.

The result is that aged Lou Blonger (now dead), A. W. Duff, Dapper Jackie French, Artful Arlie Cooper, Louis Mushnick and the lesser lights in the Denver bunko constellation were sent to Canon City.

Aviation; Central America; Panama Canal

THIS country is likely to wake up some morning soon and find that what might become its greatest assurance of peace and insurance against war has been snatched away during a night of pacifist and no defense chatter.

Industries of four nations—Japan, France, Italy and Germany—now are seeking aviation concessions in Central America, which, army and navy chiefs declare, would leave the Panama canal defenseless in time of war against the nation controlling the air to the south of it. Without the canal the problems of west coast defense would be almost unsolvable.

Thus, though it sounds grotesque at first to say our national safety hinges in part on development of Central America's aviation, that is what military men who have studied the question maintain. They are convinced that if this country will extend its air mail to Central America and help the nations there develop air possibilities these three birds would be killed with one stone.

It would be impossible for any nation successfully to attack the canal from the air because our peace time aviation development would give us air bases and an air industry quickly convertible to war needs.

It might even prevent war with any Asiatic nation, for our air position would make attack futile.

It would create great peace time advantages for Central, South, and North America, linking the three by air, creating closer business friendship and stimulating trade.

The United States, it is believed, could have the chance to develop Central American aviation for the asking. Guatemala already has asked us to step in, Nicaragua has indicated unofficially a similar desire. Other nations are reported officially to be holding off from offers of foreign concerns in the hope that America will act—but they cannot hold off forever.

This statement came from Rear Admiral William A. Moffett: "Air strategy is today a fundamental consideration in defense of the canal, and the islands of the Caribbean are in most cases potential air bases which must enter into any problem of defense and national security. Development of aviation in Central America by our interests would assure us safety for the canal."

A bill, already passed by the senate and now pigeon holed, it seems, in the house, would give navy and marine officers permission to go to Central America to train its flyers.

Cheapened Human Life a Menace

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—It is written again, thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.—Matt. 4-7.

"Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." What is the meaning of such a sentence as this? If we recognize how Jesus applied the statement, no comment could add to the clearness of its meaning. The devil had said to Him, "Cast thyself down" from the high pinnacle. Would he do it? No, that would be to tempt God. The text forbids the rash act. Back of it is the truth which God would send home to us with the force of his authority: that men are not things and they must not act as if they were.

When the devil, tearing a few words of Scripture from their connected meaning, insinuated that man could lightly regard personal responsibility, and assailed our Lord with that method, he was soon repulsed with the words "It is written again thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." In flaming admonition Jesus proclaims that man has something to answer for; God has made him responsible. When or how God's manifest deliverance of his people shall occur, averting their peril and making their safety apparent, is his own act. It is he who commands angels. It is he who gives them their charge. It is he who watches his own when they are endangered, never slumbering and never sleeping. But it is not man's right to ignore personal responsibility to God and, as if not accountable, rush madly into death.

It would appear that thousands of men and women are daily accosted by the devil as Jesus was, suggesting to them the rash act of suicide. The way may be paved by what has been read here and there, apologetically worded, about those who have taken their own lives. But if we admit the sanity of the person in question it is evident that he has plunged away from his responsibility to God, acting as if he were a mere thing. Temporarily, at least, his act suggests that he divorced from his thought the fact of his responsibility.

The lesson is plain. Notwithstanding God's wondrous love, God's watchful care, God's messengers commissioned to protect, God's presence and sufficient grace, men and women "must give account of themselves to God." Modern cults with their literature and their personal argument, which thrive upon theories that reduce personal responsibility to the merest fraction or deny it altogether are in partnership with this project of the adversary. This horoscope mania, this men-as-gods treachery, this all's-well-perfidy—this falling down prone and palsied into neglect and self-indulgence, wrapt about with personal presumption, will not do. The crime of cheapening human life meets its most searching interpretation in the Cross of Christ. The price paid there was too great for anything cheap.

And if we try to lessen the crime by the use of poetry or epigrams we only paint more plainly the semblance of death on the deadly thing. God give us eyes to see whose program this really is, and discovering the enemy, flee to Christ for refuge.

No use to try with plausible explanation to un-Judas Judas. He held the bag, he argued for economy, he kissed the Saviour; but deluded by the devil, he treated himself at last as a thing rather than as a man who must give account of himself to God. As the sun shining upon an iceberg melts the surface a little but leaves the iceberg still a monstrous danger to the sailor, so is it with that man who tempts God.

It is no exaggeration that displays man's responsibility in such incidents as the flood or the tower of Babel or the sufferings of Israel or the acknowledgments of Paul. When the word "I" is sounded boastfully how coarse is the word! But when the word "I" is sounded to tell out personal obligation and repentance, how fair! There is in Paul's confession the phrase, "I persecuted them." "I am less than the least of all saints!" Such admission of responsibility has a counterpart in David's, "Against thee, thee only have I sinned"; or his "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow." Ah, but "wash me."

The heightened sense of responsibility admits of no two masters. Great souls have been proved and martyrs have been glorified in committing themselves to one Master. With a sense of personal responsibility great enough to crush them, they have gained a sense of the sufficiency of Christ great enough to guarantee them security. Our responsibility is always matched with His proffered grace.

Like Precious Stones

It is the deeds of pure honesty, pure goodness, pure love that are built like precious stones into the fabric of our lives. And when all the other things, the mixed mass of flimsy makeshifts, have been burned away, like the woodwork of a building, these beautiful deeds will remain our imperishable treasure.—Willard Brown Thorp.

Says His Prescription

Has Powerful Influence

Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allen's, to others, who took it with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allen's with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

Electrical Development for Convenience of the Public

THE announcement that the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been awarded the Charles A. Coffin Medal for 1923, is important information to the more than 21,400 stockholders, who will feel a natural pride in the attainment by their company of this signal honor.

This award, which has attracted national attention to Northern Illinois, was made to the Public Service Company—

"In recognition of its distinguished contribution during the year nineteen hundred twenty three to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry."

In selecting this Company for the high honor, among all those competing, the Charles A. Coffin Prize Committee of the National Electric Light Association considered these outstanding factors in the Company's activities:

- Thoroughness of the policy of personal service to customers.
- Particular initiative, skill and enterprise manifested in enlarging the general use of electricity.
- Development of efficiency in company organization.
- Improvements in construction practice, resulting in greater reliability of service.
- Increased efficiency in the generation and distribution of electric energy.
- Extension of service to homes not previously wired and to rural communities.

Had not the people in the territory served by this Company recognized the essential importance to their communities of dependable electric service and by their friendly co-operation as customers and stockholders, expressed their confidence, this Company could not have accomplished the things which won honor not only to it, but to Northern Illinois.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON VIII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Why open a savings account in a savings bank?

SAVINGS—money set aside by keeping expenditures below income which is essential to individual as well as to business success.

J. H. Puelicher

ACCOUNT—accurate record, as applied to savings in a bank, of deposits and withdrawals, showing also earnings from interest; savings banks will open an account with one dollar—the amount most depositors have started with.

SAVINGS BANK—a safe place to deposit savings where they will earn interest; the bank gives the depositor a pass-book, that is, an account book showing deposits, interest credited, withdrawals and balance. Many banks not called savings banks now conduct savings departments.

A savings account in a bank indicates and encourages thrift which is an essential aid to success. Unlike money hoarded, money in the bank is safe from loss by fire or thieves, earns interest and is put to use by the banks in developing the community.

THE INFANT PRODIGY

The overnight development of the radio industry, even in a swiftly moving world, is one of the commercial romances of this century. Within the span of a little more than four years the ranks of the manufacturers, composed chiefly of those who had aided the army and navy during the war in the creation of the wireless telephone, have grown from a group of about fifty pioneers into an army of more than 3,000. Sales of radio material in 1920 amounted to a bare $1,000,000. It is estimated that the American public during the past year spent at least $150,000,000 in acquiring sets and parts of the instruments that tapped the ether. The strides that the industry is making may be indicated by the statement that expenditures for research by one of the large manufacturing groups during the next year will exceed the amount of the total sales just four years ago.

The industry is so new that the Government has been unable to take a census to determine its rank or proportions. Congress has not had time to frame legislation regulating it. Its past events have been kaleidoscopic, and the industry now is described by some as in a state of flux, although there are growing indications that it will settle down. For, with the changing phases, there is a distinct movement in the direction of standardization.—American Bankers Association Journal.

Stimulating Values of Colors.
A French experimenter tested the strength of the handgrip under colored lights, and found red was distinctly the most stimulating color, the remaining colors falling in the order: Orange, yellow, green and blue.

Has Big Butter Industry.
The city of Cork, Ireland, is one of the greatest butter centers in the world. It is estimated that one year's export of butter amounts to 750,000 cases.

BEER IS HELD NOT MEDICINE

Supreme Court Decision Mops Up Wets' Last Hope.

Washington.—The Supreme court blasted the last legal hope of the wets—under present laws—and dealt a death blow to breweries by ruling that doctors cannot prescribe beer as medicine. Thus the last legal excuse for operation of breweries was killed.

The court even went further than that. For, in effect, it certified as to the perpetual air tightness of the eighteenth amendment, pointing out that congress can do just about anything it wants to under that amendment, even to the abuse of the power it grants.

The decision, written by Justice Sanford, was unanimous. It was delivered to cover two cases—that of the James Everards breweries against Ralph A. Day, New York prohibition director, and James Burke, Ltd., against David H. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue.

Technically, it was simply an approval of similar decision in lower courts which upheld the validity of the Willis-Campbell act against beer prescriptions.

Doctors in Annual Session at Chicago

Chicago.—This city became the medical capital of the United States and will remain the capital for five days.

More than 10,000 of the leading physicians and surgeons of Europe and America were in the city, as the annual convention of the American Medical association officially opened its doors at the municipal pier.

Dr. Olin West, secretary, stated that there are now more than 90,000 members in the organization. Fifty-five thousands of these bear the honorary title of Fellow of the American Medical association. The association, Doctor West, added, publishes 31 state journals, besides the official organ, the Journal of the American Medical association.

Supreme Court Holds Strike Not Conspiracy

Washington.—In an important decision in the case of United Leather Workers International union, local lodge No. 66 et al appellants, vs. Herkert and Meisel Trunk company et al, appealed from the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth circuit, the United States Supreme court, through Chief Justice Taft, held that a strike against manufacturers intended to prevent continued manufacture, was not a conspiracy to restrain interstate commerce under the anti-trust act.

Chief Justice Taft, in his decision, reversed the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals in this case. Justices McKenna, Vandevanter and Butler dissented.

San Francisco.—Peter Clark Macfarlane, noted author and playwright, committed suicide in front of the coroner's office, adjoining the hall of justice. He fired a bullet into his left temple from an automatic and died instantly. Long-continued ill health is given as the cause of suicide.

Large Increase in Robberies of Banks

New York.—An increase of 46 per cent of the number of bank robberies and crimes against banks was reported in the first six months of this year as compared with the first half of 1923, or a total of 677 cases as compared with 463, according to the protective department of the American Bankers' association.

North Dakota Bank Reopens

Co-ordinationFROM fragments, isolated and small, science can reconstruct the great creations of nature. A fossil bone reveals a race of giant lizards. A fern frond embedded in limestone tells of a prehistoric forest. A skull dug from a bed of a river clay records whole chapters in human history.But rarely can man's handiwork, composite in its elements, be thus imagined from any of its parts. Considered alone, a tiny carbon granule from the telephone transmitter cannot even hint of the complex instrument. Only as part of a co-ordinated mechanism has this littlest unit its full significance.The telephone needs of the nation require a service national in scope and operation. Men, materials and money on a vast scale are essential. Practical co-ordination of the numberless human and mechanical agencies indispensable to the service is possible only through a nationwide organization. This the Bell System provides.ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

COMMON PEOPLE MUST OUT-LAW WAR BEFORE WORLD PEACE CAN BE ASSUREDThe world peace movement which has been on for sometime is meeting with much opposition from our war gods.The Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Unitarians, Christian Science churches have gone on record as being opposed to war. The Jews and Catholics are also fighting with these against war but at this moment cannot say if they have made such a resolution. Now with the great convention on at Cleveland, a big demand is being made for a world court plank for international peace, but in spite of all these moves toward world peace the governments of the world are now plotting and scheming for "the next war" among which our own country is setting a shining example by preparing now for "the next war" which shows that the sacrifices made by the common people in the last Great War, which was said to be a war to end all wars, were all in vain because the people were lied to. If it were true that the last war had ended all wars, we would not have to be planning for "the next war."The war lords and war gods drag out patriotism and tell the people it is wicked and disloyal to even question why war should not be. The only way in which world peace can truly be established is for the common people and the laboring element of all the nations of the world to absolutely refuse to shoulder a gun and kill each other to please the war gods. If our war lords are so anxious to fight, let them go out and do the fighting themselves and let the common people stay at home and direct the war instead of having the poor and common folk do the dirty work for which they do not get any credit.The matter of world peace is directly up to labor and the common people of all nations, for they have the power to say if war should be allowed to exist. If labor would join the churches in declaring war an outlaw, then we could look for world peace.The common people and labor of America cannot bring world peace alone, but when these two elements of all nations combining in the same kind of a movement the world over, will bring absolute world peace, but before this is brought about, war will always exist.The following article from the Joliet Commonwealth is worthy of your consideration:MARTIAL LAW FOR LABOR PLANNED FOR NEXT WAR.Washington.—Direct conscription of labor at the time of the next war "or national emergency" is reluctantly but surely, being abandoned by the strategists of the army general staff, and economic mobilization, with a guaranty of fat profits and immediate contract orders, is being substituted.The Federated Press is informed that 50 officers have been working full time, and 300 officers part time, during the past year, on plans for the next war-mobilization.
It is informed that the draft of the detailed contract which is to be signed and delivered to some 6,000 manufacturers in all parts of the country, to be made effective upon the declaration of war, will be completed in a few weeks.
This war-supplies contract, forfrom conscripting the materials and money available in the United States, has been promised by the military propagandists ever since the world war, will be a definite assurance to the manufacturer that he can operate at a profit and that he can operate immediately, when war comes. If the business interests of the country line up for a war, and stamp out populism at the critical moment, the manufacturers will make their own killing.Cost-plus Contracts.Promise is made that the profits will rise with the efficiency of the manufacturer. Cost-plus contracts will be abandoned, and the premium will be laid upon the efficiency of production, and upon speed. No guaranty of short hours and high wages is mentioned. Labor must look after its own interests.This scheme of insuring a greed inspired clamor for war throughout the country is to be offered as a modification of the American Legion's conscription bill, which was written in the war department and was introduced in congress by Senator Capper of Kansas and representative Johnson of South Dakota. The bill (H. R. 4841) provides that "in the event of a national emergency declared by congress to exist which in the judgment of the president demands the immediate increase of the establishment, the president be and he hereby is autorized to draft into the service of the United States such members of the unorganized militia as he may deem necessary; Provided, that all persons drafted into the service between the ages of 21 and 30, or such other limits as the president may fix, shall be drafted without exemption on account of industrial occupation".Alluring Contracts.That last phase covers labor in general, and is the clause which has struck a snag.Army men say the war machinery could be organized after a declaration of war, and pressure could be brought upon any group of labor or of employers that failed to fall in line. But in the meantime contracts now prepared will have been locked in the office safes, of thousands of big manufacturers, and their alluring terms will be known to the directors of Tens of thousands of banks, and other thousands of newspapers publishers, political bosses, and other molders of public opinion. And in the event of congress failing to pass this Capper-Johnson bill or any other conscription measure, the powder trains for setting off war will still have been laid.Herbert Hoover, testifying before the house military affairs committee, has shown that he is not satisfied with anything less than full conscription. He would put "war industries" under an individual administrator, and would make the president dictator in time of war. He would empower the president to "fix prices, wages transportation charges * * and to suspend habeas corpus and have generally complete and absolute authority in all ramifications over the whole civilian life, with the provision that he may delegate the authority through various agencies.
"I would favor trial by court martial for violation of any of the decrees made by the president or his agencies in pursuance of such powers vested in the president or those delegated by him. The law would naturally assume that every person is recruited into the service of the government, and court martials would necessarily be the means of enforcing it."Stimulating Values of Colors.A French experimenter tested the strength of the handgrip under colored lights, and found red was distinctly the most stimulating color, the remaining colors falling in the order: Orange, yellow, green and blue.
